The call of the drums

The school bell rang, and I waited for my mother to pick me up at the school gate as usual. Looking at the 3-D characters of my school name on the newly painted stone wall, I felt inexplicably excited. This is my grandfather's alma mater, as well as my father's. Three generations of my family have been educated by this century-old institution.

I carefully recalled the centenary celebration dinner held last night. Teachers, students and alumni participated in the grand event. Reporters and photographers from various media outlets competed for interviews, with incessant flashlights flashing in the background.

The prelude to the dinner was a unique 24-seasons drum performance. On the stage, the single-skin drums with the words "Lichun 立春", "xia zhi 夏至(summer solstice)" and "qiu fen 秋分(Autumn Equinox)" printed on them were lined up on stage. Behind the drums were youthful faces.

With the start of the drum beat, "yi tong ru" was played, and a smile appeared on the faces of the elders. Ah, this drumbeat evokes distant childhood memories, bits and pieces popping up in my mind. The strong drum beat went straight to my heart, which made me feel awestruck that I have never felt before. The majestic drum sound lasted for ten minutes, like galloping horses and rolling thunder in spring, covering the entire auditorium and winning thunderous applause from the audience at the end.

The old coach of the first 24 Seasons Drum Team of our school, although gray-haired, still walks energetically up to stage to give a speech, telling the history and origin of the 24 Seasons Drum with a loud voice.

It turns out that the 24 Seasons Drum is a cultural heritage of our country. It has not been established for a long time, and it has not experienced a hundred years of maturing, but it has already been recognized internationally. It was founded by Chen Huichong and Chen Zaifan from our country and named after the twenty-four seasons in China.

The twenty-four seasons are the "timetable" of the ancient farming era. Crops need to follow the rhythm of changing seasons. Therefore, the basic movements of the drums are all related to farming, such as transplanting rice, cutting rice, washing rice, celebrating, etc. . The most peculiar thing is that there is no drum score for the twenty-four season drums. You need to feel the beat and then you can design various movements. Therefore, every performance of the 24 seasons drum constantly challenges the creativity of the team and drummers.

My school established the 24 Seasons Drum Team 20 years ago. In the early days, the drum team trained in the abandoned teachers' dormitory, and was forced to disband due to floods, and fell into a difficult period.

Fortunately, with the tireless perseverance of the teachers and students at the school, they were able to be revitalized (direct translation: reborn from the ashes). With the full support and encouragement of the villagers, they worked tirelessly and continuously to improve their drum skills.

The old coach said that in 2009, the 24 Seasons Drum was listed as an intangible cultural heritage of Malaysia. Many famous 24 Seasons Drum Teams in our country were invited to perform abroad to promote the art at the international stage, to spread the tradition and heritage. The 24 seasons drum have spread to all five continents and have been extended to orphanages in Africa. African children also dressed in brightly coloured clothes, not only did they combined the rhythm of Western music, but also added impromptu performances, putting on a performance with touching drum beats.

Under the crowded stage, I listened to the struggles and history of the predecessors, and I couldn't help but feel passionate/emonational, and made a decision...

I turned my eyes to the crowd and searched for my mother. I couldn't wait to tell my mother that I will join the 24 Seasons Drum Team today and hoped to become an excellent drummer in the future. The wall behind me with sharp-edged square characters is where I start my journey, it is also my unshakable foundation.
